these were tactics used widely across eastern europe, the middle east, and through central and eastern asia as far as korea and japan such as meat, fish, eggs, vegetables and a limited amount of unrefined starch-based foods such as potato,